Superior Cabinets named Saskatchewan Manufacturer of the Year

Superior Cabinets has been selected as the recipient of the 2015 Saskatchewan Manufacturer of the Year award for its exemplary achievements in the areas of innovation, leadership, export, and manufacturing practices.

The award was presented by Canadian Manufacturers & Exporters (CME) and RBC Royal Bank last night, November 29th, at the annual Ministers' Manufacturing Dinner, hosted by dignitaries of the Government of Saskatchewan.

"This significant recognition celebrates manufacturing leaders that are making meaningful contributions to job creation, economic growth, and the community in Saskatchewan," says CME Senior Vice-President, Mathew Wilson. "These are the leaders driving our communities; and I am proud to recognize Superior Cabinets for its continued leadership and innovation in the province."

Founded in 1980, Superior Cabinets is one of Western Canada's leading manufacturers and suppliers of frameless kitchens with a long-held and well-earned reputation for fine quality products, outstanding customer service, and dedication to employee success.

Super Cabinets has been through all ups and downs imagined, from economic states, to losing a key member of the business tragically, yet they have been quick to adjust the sails in difficult times, while making sound, strategic decisions that have continuously resulted in growth.

The role of technology and continuous improvement has been crucial in its success, where leadership and the development of its people are the drivers of this.

Throughout its ups and downs, Superior Cabinets has still managed to maintain its corporate social responsibility by helping charities and initiatives such as Habitat for Humanity, the Crisis Nursery, Movember, and numerous cancer-fighting agencies, to name a few.

"RBC is proud to collaborate, innovate and partner with CME and to support its members who fuel our economy and contribute to the global ecosystem," says Andy Wolske, RBC Vice-President of Commercial Financial Services. "A shining example of business achievement and a champion for the community, we join in congratulating and celebrating Superior Cabinets as Saskatchewan Manufacturer of the Year."

In 2015, manufacturing sales in Saskatchewan totaled $14 billion, and employed over 26,000 people, contributing 6.6% to Saskatchewan's GDP.
